

Teaching Kids About Money

Sure, they may know how to spend it. But what do your children really know about money? Here are four hands-on activities from Texas CPAs to help you teach your children how to handle personal finances.

- 1. Start out young with money recognition, spending and saving.
Activities: Pretend grocery shopping, save coins in a piggy bank
- 2. Expose elementary school children to budgeting, financial goal-setting and borrowing money.
Activities: Weekly allowance, open a savings account
- 3. Teach middle school and junior high students about investing, credit and compound interest.
Activity: Consider a pre-paid credit card for your child
- 4. Make sure high school students understand how to earn, save and spend money responsibly.
Activities: Open a checking account, review a first paycheck

Visit www.ValueYourMoney.org for more personal finance advice. Brought to you by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Table tent for break room

Teaching Kids About Money

Sure, they may know how to spend it. But what do your children really know about money? Here are four hands-on activities from Texas CPAs to help you teach your children how to handle personal finances.

- 1. Start out young with money recognition, spending and saving.
Activities: Pretend grocery shopping, save coins in a piggy bank
- 2. Expose elementary school children to budgeting, financial goal-setting and borrowing money.
Activities: Weekly allowance, open a savings account
- 3. Teach middle school and junior high students about investing, credit and compound interest.
Activity: Consider a pre-paid credit card for your child
- 4. Make sure high school students understand how to earn, save and spend money responsibly.
Activities: Open a checking account, review a first paycheck

Visit www.ValueYourMoney.org for more personal finance advice. Brought to you by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.